Expert facilitator

Dr Denise Quinlan is acknowledged internationally as an outstanding facilitator and speaker who has inspired and supported hundreds of Diploma students on this personal and professional learning journey.

Equally at home with senior corporate executives, scientists, engineers, and marginalised groups, her humour and honesty allow her to create environments where participants can fully engage and contribute.

Denise translates complex research into usable, practical strategies, whilst always staying true to the science.

“ The training was incredible. It has given me such a strong foundation on which now to complete the assessments and continue my learning throughout the year. The course is engaging and so relevant to my life and profession. ”
